presents

The Tattler

Through their never ending patience,
Their profound guidance,
And their wise leadership,
The long road of education has been made open and smooth.
We owe it all to the most important group in the high school —
The Faculty and Administration.

myriad duties fall to superintendent

The Board of Directors of the East Penn School District, composed of nine elected men, is responsible for the administration of all schools in the district and works in accordance with financing the schools, employing all personnel, maintaining school property, and deciding policy.

Mr. Lemmon C. Stoudnour, Superintendent of Schools, is constantly working to keep our schools abreast of the changing times. He supervises the hiring of school employees, plans and enforces the budget, directs the planning of new facilities, and brings recommendations before the school board.

student needs variously met

Responsibility for the conduct of the business affairs of the school district rested with Mr. Wilbur Huber and his assistant, Mr. Richard Miller. Their job was to supervise the purchasing of supplies and equipment, the payment of bills and salaries, the preparation of the budget, and the many reports which must be filed with the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction.

Taking care of the endless details in the business office were the job of the secretarial staff. To them was delegated the responsibility for the smooth conduct of high school business affairs with great emphasis upon maintaining accurate records.

Miss Mary Zurowska, Home and School Visitor, assumed responsibility for visiting the homes of those children whose work in school was less than adequate. If problems in the home were the cause, her experience and counselling proved invaluable in improving the condition.

Mrs. Katherine Plarr, the Cafeteria Manager, was in charge of all activities relating to food service. Among her many duties the planning of a well-balanced diet for the students held priority.

administration strives

The responsibilities of Mr. Frantz, the principal of Emmaus High School, are of such magnitude that few students can realize his full burden. He fulfills his duties, with a degree of excellence that always keeps the school at a high standard of operation. Mr. Frantz has also established a close bond between the administration and the student body, a bond that keeps the school running smoothly and efficiently.

for efficiency

Probably the man with the greatest personal contact with the students, Mr. Unger always maintains a firm yet understanding disciplinary stand with the students of Emmaus High School. Always striving to reach new and better goals, Mr. Unger has an integral part in the functional and administrative activities of our school.

student health carefully checked

Upon entering the nurse's office one is confronted by a scene of organization. Despite the daily flow of students with minor ailments, Miss Graver has time to administer medical examinations, periodic hearing and visual check-ups and tuberculin tests. Miss Graver, however, also has the time to teach basic first aid to high school girls serving as health assistants. The quality of medical attention given by Miss Graver is indeed comforting to both the students and the faculty, who depend a great deal on the services performed by this qualified person.

The placing of a bandage on an "injured" hand is only one of Miss Graver's many tasks in the course of a school day.

Miss Graver listens and observes closely while administering a hearing test.

district officers give special service

Not only developing a well-organized program for many students but also acting as the school psychologist, Mr. Keim, as Supervisor of Special Services is constantly associated with students of all abilities. The District Supervisor of Reading, Mr. Wagner, sets a busy pace for his personnel since his schedule includes testing the reading abilities of pre-first grade children and selecting books for both classroom and library use. The District Office secretary, Jeanne Unger, has a never ending job of assisting Mr. Keim and Mr. Wagner in their service to the school district.

personal counseling offered to students

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT — Mr. Leon Tuttle, Miss Mildred Strauss, Mr. Evan Richards.

More individual attention has been and continues to be the prime goal of the guidance department. Mr. Richards is responsible for supervising the freshmen and teaching them to adjust to school and community life in occupations class. The freshmen are also issued numerous tests such as aptitudes and lowas to determine their abilities in forthcoming years. Miss Strauss and Mr. Tuttle who counsel girls and boys in tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades, assume the responsibility to meet individually with each student at least twice a year. Together, they keep all college-bound seniors well informed of upcoming examinations, scholarship opportunities, and application deadlines. Vocational aptitude tests were also administered to those who felt their formal education would be concluded upon high school graduation.

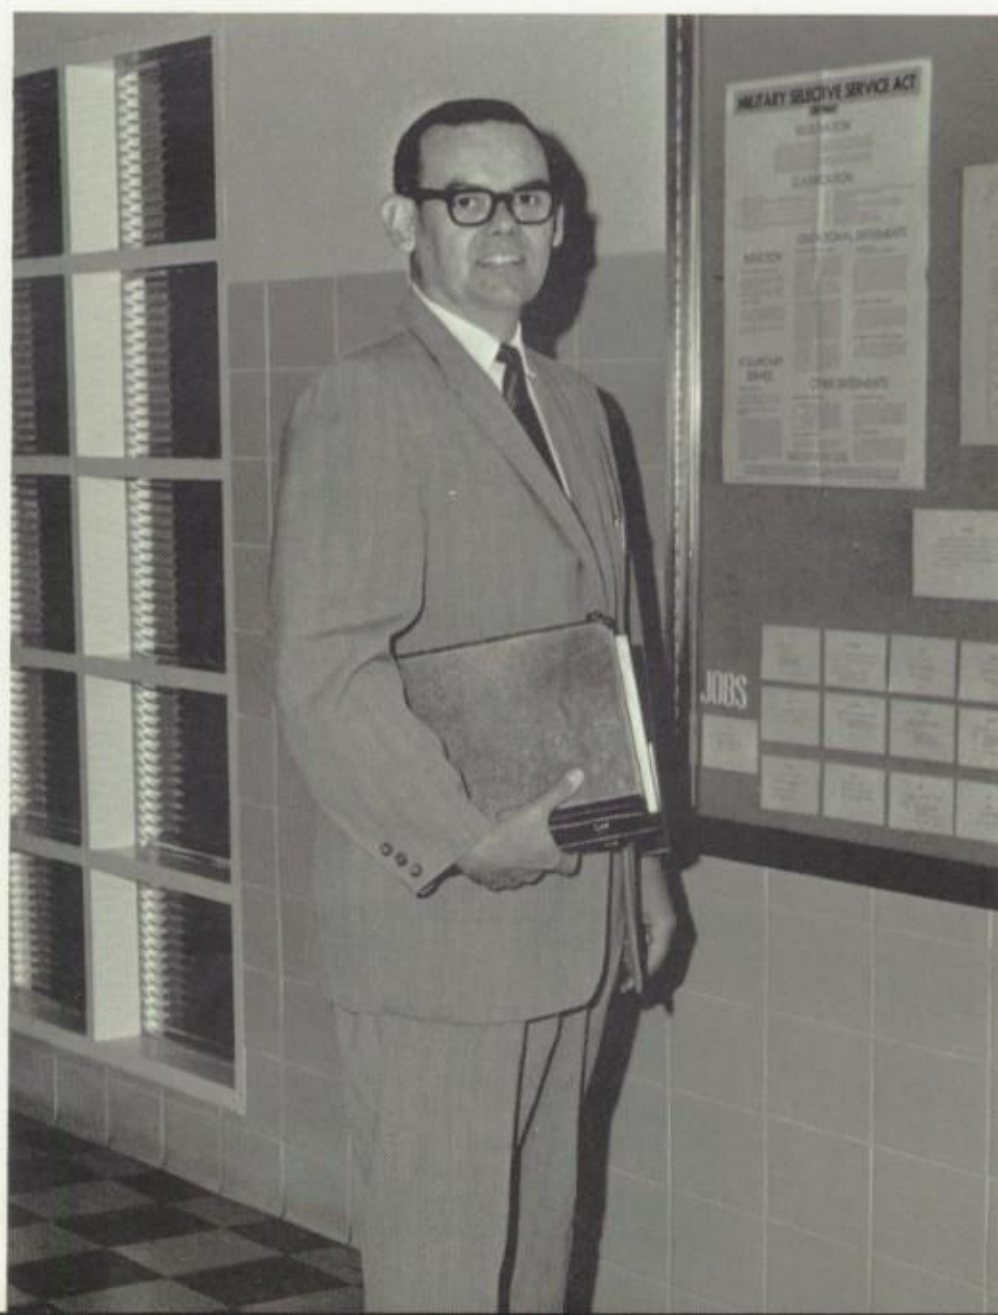

The guidance secretaries, Mrs. Barbara Ritter and Mrs. Mae Barto, bear the brunt of all the secretarial work absorbed by the guidance department.

The Guidance Department was also responsible for the planning and supervision of an individual's academic schedule and extra programs. It was necessary to coordinate the high school program with the student's plans for post high school studies or other endeavors. To accomplish this, each student's particular interests and capabilities were carefully reviewed. In addition, counselors scheduled time to advise students on the personal problems arising in daily school life.

library provides needed materials

Assisting students in finding reference material and supervising all library procedures, Mrs. Dougherty, aided by Mrs. Arndt, has helped to make the library an integral part of many curricula. Time was also taken by Mrs. Dougherty to train students as library aides and to maintain an efficient place for study. Our new librarian has been kept busier than ever, ordering new books, repairing old ones, and stocking the library with materials recently purchased. These added resources have made, and will make, our library a more comprehensive place for research and enjoyment. Because Mrs. Dougherty is always willing to listen to the students' problems in finding information, the burden of the work required is made much lighter.

To provide a good working knowledge of the English language, our English department has thoroughly drenched the student body with the study of grammar, vocabulary, composition, and literature. Through the study of literature, students observed all the methods and usage of the English language over the countless periods of history. This study coupled with thousands of periods, commas, semicolons, and other punctuation marks helped us master writing and aided our abilities in both prepared, and extemporaneous speaking. This year, an Honors English class, stressing composition and literature interpretation, was instituted for those seniors who could qualify.

All these things the English department has tried to exemplify, all working toward the ultimate goal of clear expression of thoughts and ideas.

creative ability — a constant challenge

In the course of high school career, a student was certain to be required to present numerous oral reports or speeches. For the student who was particularly interested in this method of communication, an elective course in public speaking offered the opportunity for further study and training. Here speakers experimented with all types of formal and informal speaking. The English Department also stressed the need for articulate writing. To achieve this goal, a program of progressive study from basic grammar in junior high to a final study of vocabulary as a senior, polished his skills.

As the world moves faster and its inhabitants are thrown ever closer together, the need arises more than ever for more than the mechanical usage of a language. Seeing this need, Emmaus High School has seen fit to offer a varied choice of modern foreign languages — French, German, and Spanish. Latin is also taught as a basic language for academic enrichment.

The teachers of these various languages have seen even farther into the problem. Along with a thorough knowledge of the respective language, they also try to add a touch of the individual cultures of the countries. Such aspects include a study of the people, famous foods of the countries, celebrations of the populace, and holidays.

With the excellent abilities of the staff and the varied courses available, every student has the opportunity to fulfill the requirements.

Coming to Emmaus High School in Pennsylvania was an experience which our foreign exchange student, Alicia Pritz, will never forget. Since her arrival in New York, Alicia has been constantly astounded by new sights and customs.

Arriving from Argentina in summer, Alicia began her schooling as a senior in Emmaus. She took French as her foreign language, coupled with a broad-based curriculum. Her greatest enjoyment in school was Problems of Democracy, where she could always be found inserting comments on the Argentinian way of life.

After her year at Emmaus, Alicia will return to Argentina, where she will continue her education at a University.

logical thinking developed in math

The mathematics department of Emmaus High School offers its students any course from general math to calculus. A very competent staff rounds out this most outstanding department.

The age of digits rapidly approaches with such machines as digital computers and the various complicated number systems used by all phases of business today. Business math courses prepare future business men and women for their big step into the business world or for college which is placing more and more emphasis on mathematics as a part of the required curriculum for admittance.

Taking a short nap during Plane Geometry class is not an accepted study habit, or a good means by which to derive an "A", but Mr. Burger found it difficult to reprimand this student who was practicing this very method in class.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT: (Seated) Mr. William A. Miller, Miss Ruth Smith, Mr. Jerome Baer. (Standing) Mr. Eugene P. Schantzenbach, Mr. Haven Knecht, Mr. Albert Miller, Mr. George L. Schilling, Mr. Dennis P. Gimbel.

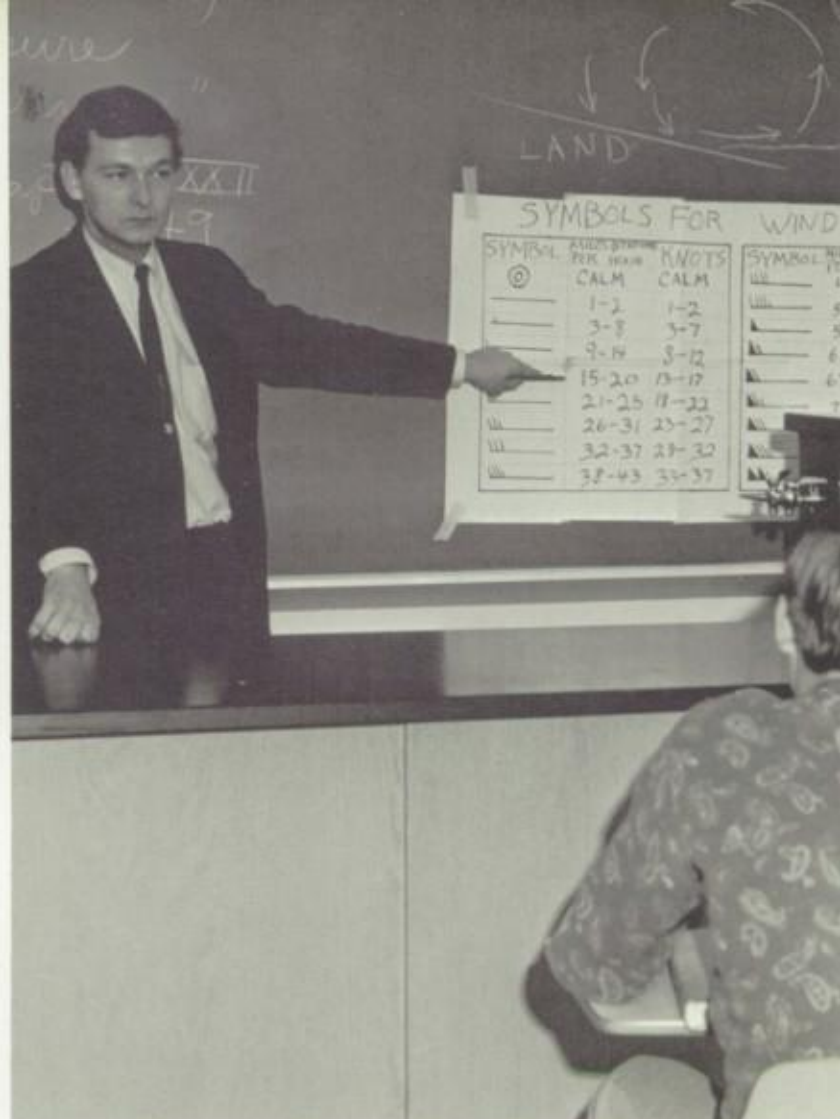

Unlimited facilities and a qualified staff enabled our science department to offer a stimulating and varied program of the sciences to the students of Emmaus High School.

Biology, chemistry, and physics, with the possibility of a second year in each of these fields, were thoroughly investigated. Various experiments were performed daily by students under the careful supervision of their most competent instructors. Along with the specific sciences, an excellent system of general science courses were offered.

social studies accents global viewpoint

Social studies was an integral part of everybody's education at Emmaus High School. The study of the past made possible a realistic outlook on the life of a present and the future. World Cultures, Geography, International Relations, and American History prepared the student to be a responsible United States citizen with an adequate knowledge of the world about him.

In ninth grade pupils received the opportunity of campaigning for political offices and managing the Emmaus Borough for a day to witness government in action. By staging mock trials and visiting the County Court House and County Jail, students were informed of jurisdictional procedures in the nation. Debating about current issues such as the legal voting age increased students' awareness of the problems of modern politics.

In addition to studying history to gain a basic understanding of the events leading to the present political, economic, and social situations, students were encouraged to engage in discussions pertaining to events which may happen in the future. With the "shrinking" of the globe, the Social studies Department sought to help students gain an understanding of the peoples of the world and their relationships with other nations.

business training a practical program

Students who have planned their future as a secretary, stenographer, bookkeeper, or clerical worker received expert training from the staff in the Business Education Department. Students were provided with practical vocational experience, achieved through two specialized curricula, Clerical, which prepared the students who have intentions of entering into general business, and Secretarial, which emphasized the skills needed for secretarial work. The staff in this department strove to provide an adequate background for their students through the experiences in the classroom and by supplying them with assistance in on the job training when requested to do so.

domestic skills stressed at E.H.S.

In the mandatory home economics course given to girls in the ninth grade, homemaking, housekeeping, and the social graces were taught.

Originating were fashions, presenting displays, arranging appropriate table settings, sewing, cooking, household financing and management, child care, etiquette, and grooming were the categories stressed in this department. The aroma of freshly baked doughnuts or cookies and the creativity of the homeliving showcase were proof of the accomplishments of these industrious girls. In addition to teaching the regular curriculum, the home living department assumed other responsibilities, such as an Open House for the faculty at Christmas.

Attractive display cases are but one way in which students expressed their artistic ability. For the more gifted, advanced study was provided. Projects such as drawing sketches, creating mosaics, making wood carvings, and designing mobiles kept Miss Mary Miller's students busy. Elective art students met every day to work both individually and as a group on their projects. The freshmen also had a mandatory art course which met once a week. All in all, the art department was but another mode of individual expression for students, and it offered excellent advice through its most capable and talented instructor.

ART DEPARTMENT: Miss Mary E. Miller. Elective Art students place the finishing touches on their posters that will be displayed in Emmaus during Halloween.

choir makes debut on local television

The music department endeavored to present interesting and original musical programs for the students and for the general public. The Concert Choir, the vocal ensemble, and the dance, marching, and concert bands provided a challenge for musically minded students. Assembly programs and public performances provided excellent experience for the serious musicians. For those not as talented but still interested in music, various music and theory courses were offered. This year the talents of Emmaus have been widely acclaimed. The concert band traveled to Canada for a two day concert at Expo '67 and the vocal ensemble appeared twice on local television.

physical fitness increasingly stressed

Our physical education staff stiffened its requirements, updated its curriculum, and stimulated student interest in healthful activities.

The physical education department tried to expose everyone to football, baseball, soccer, field hockey, tennis, basketball, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, and track, hoping that an interest in one of these sports might develop. Indirectly, students have learned teamwork, the will to win, and sacrifice — the reward of a person knowing he has done his best.

vocational skills developed in shops

For boys interested in using their hands, the industrial arts program offered instruction in woodworking, electricity, metal shop, printing, and mechanical drawing. Seniors could elect any one of these shops for the entire year, while other grades received one half year of either wood or metal shop, one fourth year of mechanical drawing, and one fourth year of printing. Students chose their own projects from either the department's supply of plans or from original sources.

specialized program meets special needs

Students requiring special services were provided with assistance and convenience that augmented an otherwise rigid scholastic course of study. Mr. Roth worked many long hours with students grouped for specialized education. Under his excellent guidance, these pupils received the leadership and teaching they needed to find their places in today's world.

Mr. Donald Leibensperger and Mr. Franklin G. Roberts, the Driver Education instructors, offer the students an opportunity to become safer drivers.

driver ed stresses safe driving habits

The instructors in the Driver Education department, Mr. Donald Leibensperger and Mr. Franklin Roberts, offered invaluable aid to sophomores and juniors learning to drive. The course included classroom study of driving laws, safety measures, and automobile mechanics. Films and practice driving tests characterized the classroom experience. For the juniors, actual behind the wheel training provided them with the practice needed to pass the state driving test.

*The crowded halls echo once more.

As they rushed to classes,
As they played when work was done,
As they enjoyed the tremulous school spirit,
Soon fades away;
But not the memories
Of the founded friendships.*

EHS days — the unusual and the usual

How did he get in here? Confusion and amusement overcome five editors of The Tattler. In the midst of photographing school activities a silly dog wandered in to join Sandra Muhr, Melanie Repp, Alice Arnold, Jeff Stortz, and Allen Yarus. In the meantime at the other end of the school impatient seniors waited to make calls. Unfortunately the wrong person beat them to it. When Sue Hacker starts to talk, everyone waits a long time.

students represent EHS at home and abroad

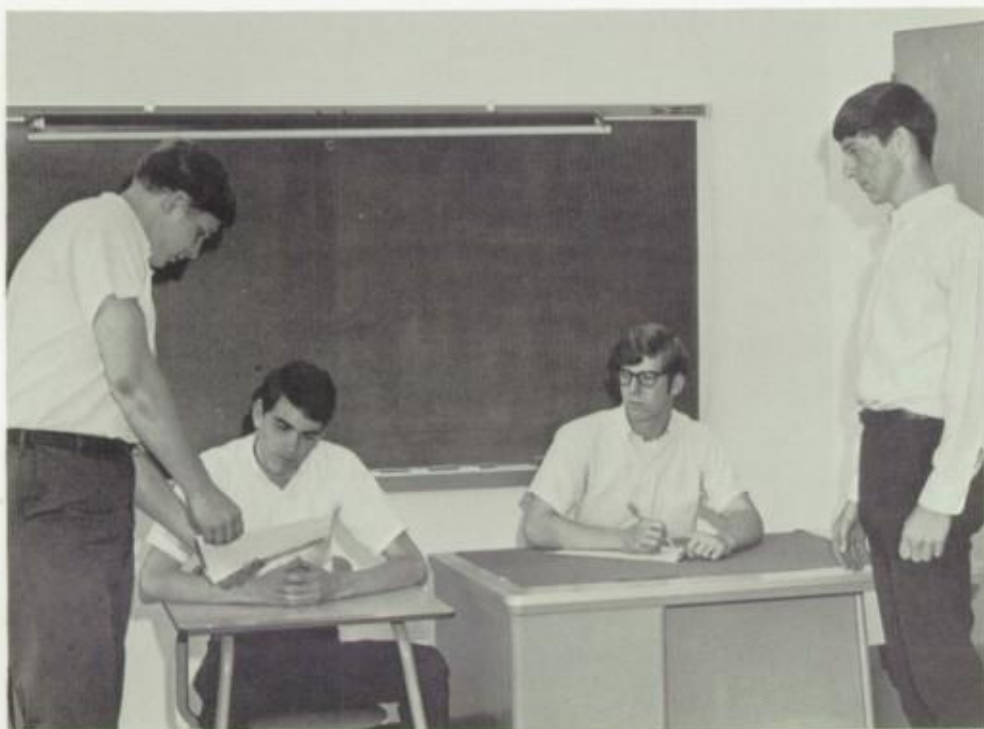

Demonstrating their ability in public speaking, all students of Mrs. Bieber's elective class prepared speeches on "Freedom's Challenge." In the contest sponsored by the VFW there were three school winners: First Place, Cynthia Stengele; Second Place, Barbara Lucik; Third Place, Kathy Tercha. Our first place winner's speech was taped and sent on to districts. For her efforts she was rewarded with a dictionary, plaque, and medal.

Next year Emmaus High School will be represented by five students who will serve as exchange students under the Rotary program in foreign countries. Below, from left to right are Jeff Merkel, Brian Van Ness, Wendy Smith, Winona Haas, and Pam Hardy. They will travel to Sweden, Denmark, or South Africa.

seniors draw large crowds with comedy

In the setting of a humble boarding house for up-and-coming stars, the Class of 1968 presented "A Handful of Rainbows" to an enthusiastic audience. The clashing personalities of the stars depicted in the play presented a test to the acting abilities of those who participated. Although efforts in acting and setting were not fully coordinated until the week before the play, the cast produced a unique experience for all who viewed it. However, the long hours of practice and improvising forgotten lines will be among the most significant memories to all involved in the production.

Rebecca, in a drunken stupor, tells Jeff she must break their engagement in order to be seen at parties by the right people more often.

In the solitude of a backstage scene, the cast sorrowfully recollected the hours of fun and energy which had come to an end in their final performance.

seniors initiate a kick-off breakfast

It was the morning before the Big Turkey Day game at E.H.S. and the Class of '68 helped to start the celebrations by holding the first Senior Breakfast. Class members came to school early to honor the championship football team. Everyone wore green and gold buttons displaying the words, "Seniors Forever." By seven o'clock enthusiasts were shouting, "We want the Hornets!" led by members of the Pep Club and Soul Brothers. In a few minutes, in walked the E.H.S. Hornets, led by co-captains Dennis Sholl and Thom Heist. Later, on the field, the cheerleaders hopefully watch a field goal.

bonnie reigns over turkey day festival

Beginning with a pre-game pep rally, E.H.S. students demonstrated their support for their school's number one football team. After speeches, cheers, a pep club skit, and the crowning of Bonnie Zimmerman as Football Queen, the team was prepared for its Turkey Day victory. After the success, the day ended with a bonfire, snake dance through town, and a victory dance in the gym. Penny Follette, Sandy Rogers, Pat Faust, Susan Smith, Colleen Kells, and Ann Puzaskas were other contenders for the title.

STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS: Gregory Hutchinson (President), Bonnie Zimmerman (Secretary), Eileen Laudenslager (Assistant Secretary-Treasurer), Jeanne Hamscher (Vice-President), Kathy Shannon (Treasurer), Mr. Roberts (Advisor).

Student Council, consisting of representatives from each ninth through twelfth grade homeroom, was the means through which students could voice their opinions and suggest improvements for their school. The Council sponsored social events as well as services for the student body. Victory dances after football games and the Star and Garter dance with its male Go-Go dancers provided fun for all and helped raise money for other worthwhile projects. Led by Mr. Franklin Roberts and the Council officers, members helped to sell class rings and operated the school store, provided lyceum programs, co-sponsored an exchange student, and established a $300 scholarship.

The Tattler Staff of 1968, headed by Editor-in-Chief, Allen Yarus, presents the forty-sixth edition of the E.H.S. yearbook. The staff endeavored to gather together a few of the countless and unforgettable happenings of the year, arranging these bits of school life so that they may be remembered for years to come. Sections were organized, managing editors chosen, and pages assigned, so that completion of the book would be before fall. Money raising projects were undertaken by the entire staff and bake sales, a doughnut sale, a Double Chiller Theater and patron advertising helped to defray the costs of publication.

The E-Hive writing staff, under the direction of Mrs. Linda Zinnes, strived to meet the standards set by the National Scholastic Press Association. The aims of the staff members were to entertain and inform the readers on news of scholastic achievements, sports, events, and opinions of the student body. The business staff, directed by Mrs. Epinger, assumed the responsibility of raising money to publish the paper by selling subscriptions and candy and by holding their annual Spring Carnival. After serving satisfactorily for a period of two years, the senior members received an eight inch chenille letter.

Once again the Library Aides serve E.H.S., especially Mrs. Dougherty. By working at the desk, organizing files, and shelving books, these high school girls prove invaluable to the librarian. The girls too benefit from this experience by familiarizing themselves with the Dewey Decimal System and the latest book editions. Forming an integral part of EHS life, their services were appreciated.

To recognize the creative abilities of the students of EHS, a group of teens guided by Mrs. Allen, organized the Collage staff. The first issue, distributed in May, contained samplings of art work, stories, poems, essays, and sketches, all contributed by the authors themselves or by their English teachers. This literary magazine magnificently displayed the sundry talents found in our high school.

thespians perform "Sorry, Wrong Number"

October 14 proved to be an exciting start for the Drama Club, as the members traveled to New York to see the play "Mame" on Broadway. As reference for future acting, they also attended another play, "The Boys From Syracuse," performed by students of Muhlenberg College. By seeing these plays and other films, the thespians learned many secrets which helped them in the murder suspense play, "Sorry, Wrong Number," presented in an assembly. In addition, the annual Christmas tableau was presented with excellent costuming. It is through this experience that the Drama Club hopes to become active enough to join the National Thespian Society to which it has been invited.

honor society honors EHS scholars

The National Honor Society recognized students of high scholastic ability. In order to receive an invitation to the society, one must obtain a pre-specified number of honor role points. Then, in February, the annual induction ceremony affords an aspiring assembly for fellow students. This year the seniors introduced forty outstanding juniors to the association. To serve the school, Honor Society members offer their tutoring abilities to their struggling companions. Members also show appreciation of their school by being hosts at Open Houses.

fta girls enjoy classroom experience

Members of FTA explored all facets of teaching and participated in various national projects. Throughout the year, prospective teachers heard programs concerning the education of retarded children, the importance of travel, the systems of learning in other countries, and the instruction of deaf and dumb children.

Conventions, a college trip, tutoring junior high students, and aiding teachers all characterized a typical year for FTA members. However, the most valuable experience lay in the cadet teaching program. Through this system, the girls actually entered the classroom as teachers, where they gained insight into their future profession.

Resolved: "That Congress should establish uniform regulations to control investigation procedures." With this topic, EHS debaters confronted teams from other area high-schools for their league debates. Aside from their competitive program, the squad members argued in a scramble debate in front of various classes, they formed a panel concerning teenagers for discussion at a Woman's Club meeting, they debated among club members for the Campus Life Club, and they finished the year with a television performance.

FHA members learned the art of keeping a perfect home and the importance of their future roles. As a service to the Valley, the girls annually sponsored many good-will projects.

key club serves school and community

Sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club, the Key Club had the distinction of being the only service club in our school. The club tried to introduce projects both challenging to its members and interesting to the entire student body. For example, this year the Key Club provided several trips to Expo '67 and one to Niagra Falls for the benefit of the student. Complementing various trips, the club also sponsored the Bulcyek Mondango which featured three old-time films plus a dance highlighted by the Thea Rose. Remaining active throughout the year, the Key Club provided many community services, the largest being a weekend camping trip for the disadvantaged youths of the district.

pep club promotes strong school spirit

PEP CLUB OFFICERS: Ann Puzauskas (President), Susan Smith (Vice-President), Debbie Esterly (Treasurer), Cheryl Mathias (Secretary).

The Emmaus High School Pep Club stimulated unparalleled spirit during the school year of 1967-1968. The club innovated "pep badges" which were sold at all important sports activities. Before each athletic activity painted signs decorated the halls, and at each football game an organized section of members used shakers purchased by the Pep Club to cheer our team on to victory. A skit written by club members was again presented at the Thanksgiving Pep Rally, and the official Green Hornet entertained its audiences. Sponsoring buses to away football games and many away basketball games gave E.H.S. students an opportunity to actively support their school. The Pep Club again awarded plaques to the football team and awards to several girls doing the most work in supporting school spirit. To finance all these services, the club held bake sales and "The Athlete's Foot," a dance honoring all E.H.S. athletes.

band highlights sports, parades, concerts

The Emmaus Green Hornet Band, under the direction of Mr. Jack Long and the leadership of drum major, Donald Wetzel, was a familiar sight at many school activities. Consisting of many fine musicians, band members displayed their talents at football games during halftime performances, and marched in numerous Halloween parades. Adding to the appearance of the band at all their performances are the Color Guards, led by Dawn Tschudy, and the majorettes, under the direction of Eileen Laudenslager. Highlights of the year were the annual Band Concert on April 5 and 6, and their Pancake Supper on January 13.

Officers of the E.H.S. Band are President, Bruce Rohrbach; Vice-President, Mark Roth; Recording Secretary, Debra Grainer; Assistant Recording Secretary, Tom Wetzel; Promotion Secretary, Nancy Trexler; Assistant Promotion Secretary, Diane Kovack; Historian, Ronnie Mohr; Treasurer, Bob Wambold.

Band members, flaunting every type of instrument, practice marching on the field. Formations change as the camera dodges between the lines.

As the musicians try to form straight lines, many find it difficult to avoid the yearbook camera. Is that Steve Barker trying to hide a grin?

majorettes and colorguard add dash

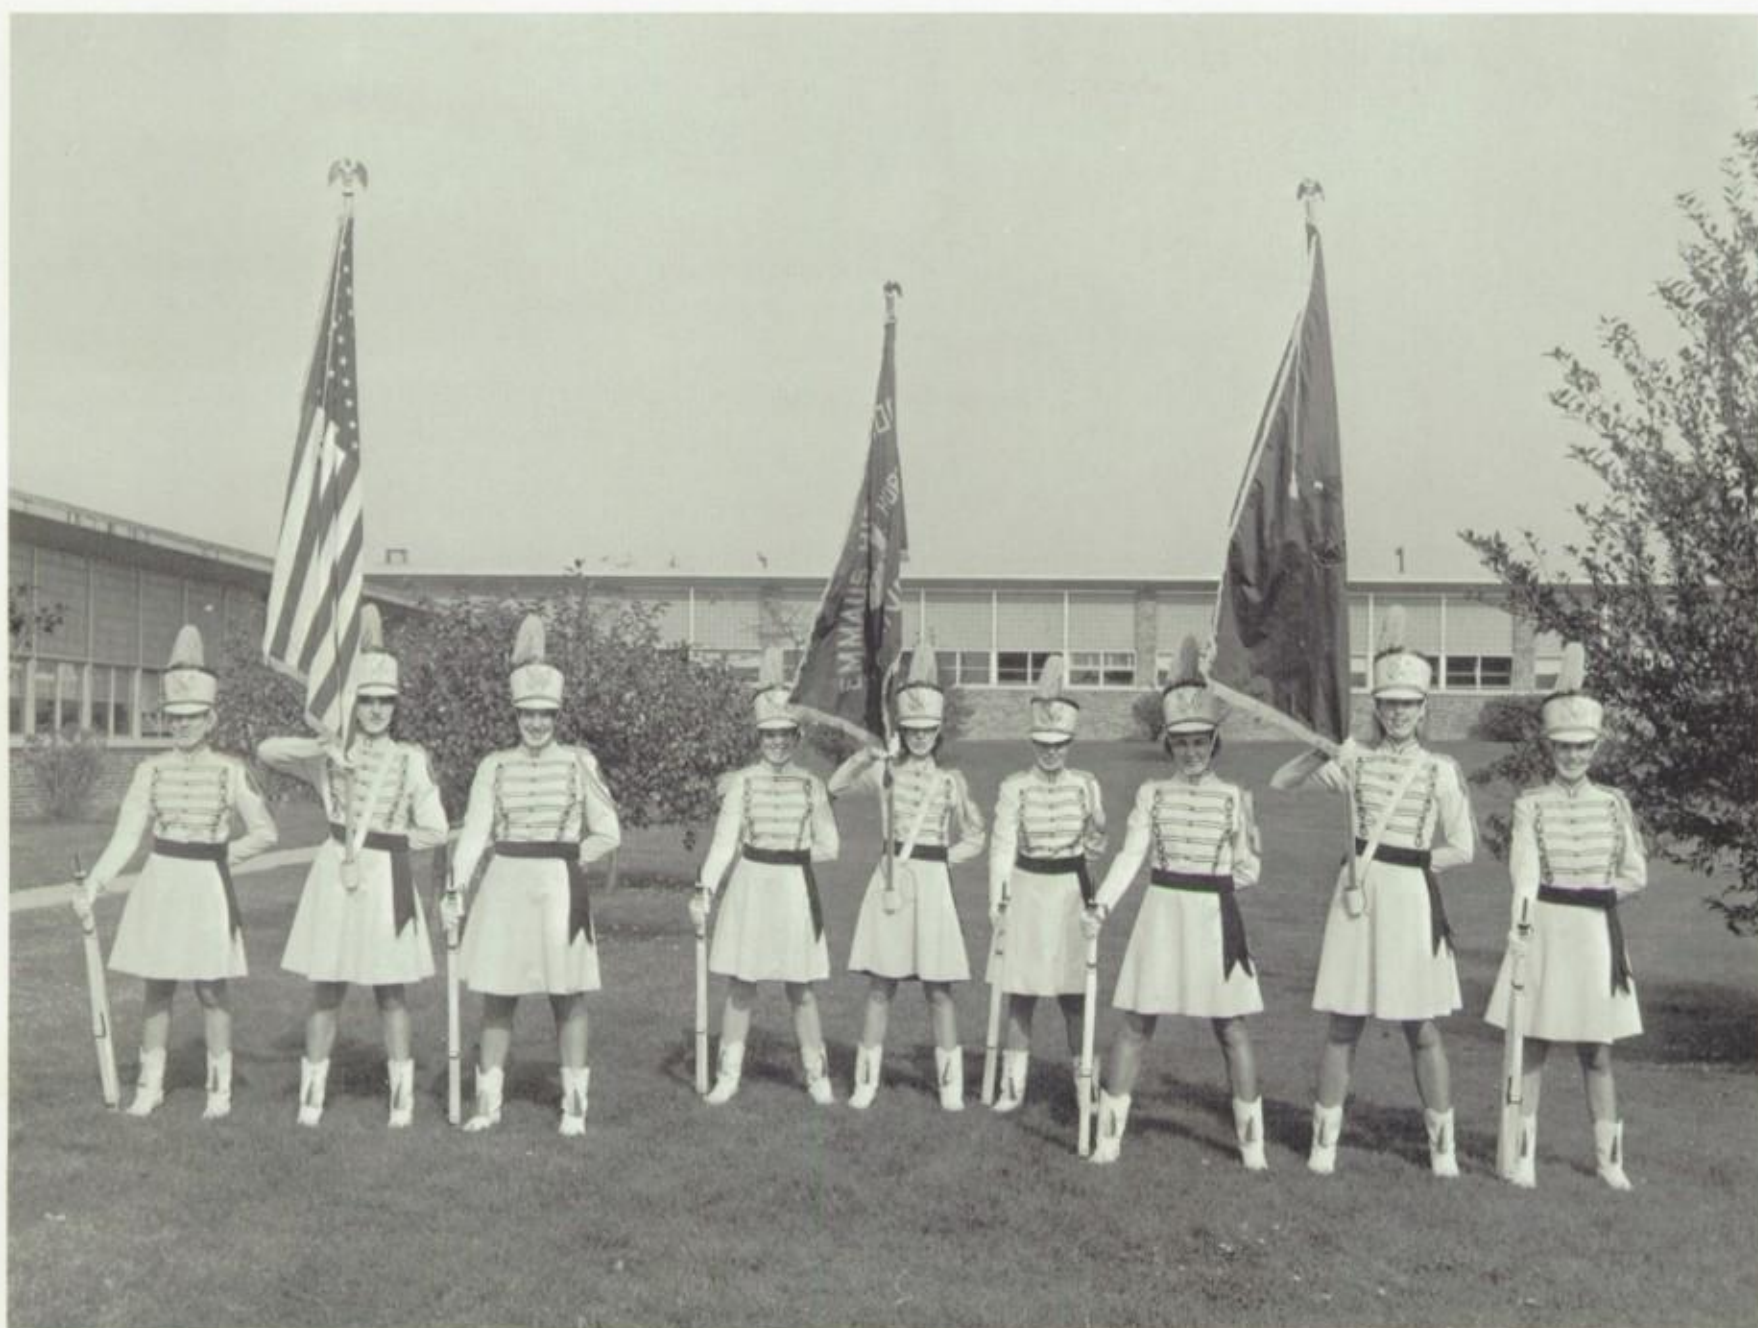

Commanded by Dawn Tschudy, the colorguards presented many new gundrills for the entertainment of the E.H.S. fans, but only after many hours of practice during the summer and the school year. However, this was time well spent as the straight lines and precision accuracy of the girls' performances illustrated. Headed by Eileen Laudenslager, the majorettes performed equally ingenious routines for the football and basketball fans. Also, their new costumes and clever choreography certainly made any E.H.S. student proud of them.

As the majorettes strike a beginning position, their neat and orderly form is displayed and they lead the band onto the field.

EHS features folk singers

Several clubs this year have consisted of students interested in music. The Clairvoyant Minstrel Society, interested in many different types of music, participated in the annual Christmas program and in several assemblies. The Guitar Club was formed to promote the guitar as a musical instrument, and concerns itself with all types of musical interpretation geared for the guitar. The Esquires, the E.H.S. Dance Band, are devoted to the preservation of the big band and jazz sounds. They have performed in concerts, assemblies, and two stage band contests, and its twenty boys have stirred the rhythm in many of our students.

The Concert Choir, a seventy member group under the direction of Mr. G. Wesley Sell, and the Vocal Ensemble, a select branch of the choir, provided many hours of musical entertainment in assemblies and concerts. This year, using money earned at concerts, the choir bought gold blazers with green emblems as their uniforms. A distinctive honor to E.H.S. was the appearance of the twenty-seven member Ensemble on WLTV, channel 39. The Glee Club also entertained at the Christmas and spring concerts. The enthusiastic girls of this club practiced weekly after school, and many of its members look forward to continuing their study of music next year.

Jeff Strouse, Robert Woodshick, and Danny Reinsmith provided entertainment with a professional barbershop quartet sound. Their efforts at this type of music were well worth the final result enjoyed by the audience.

craft club taxes creative potential

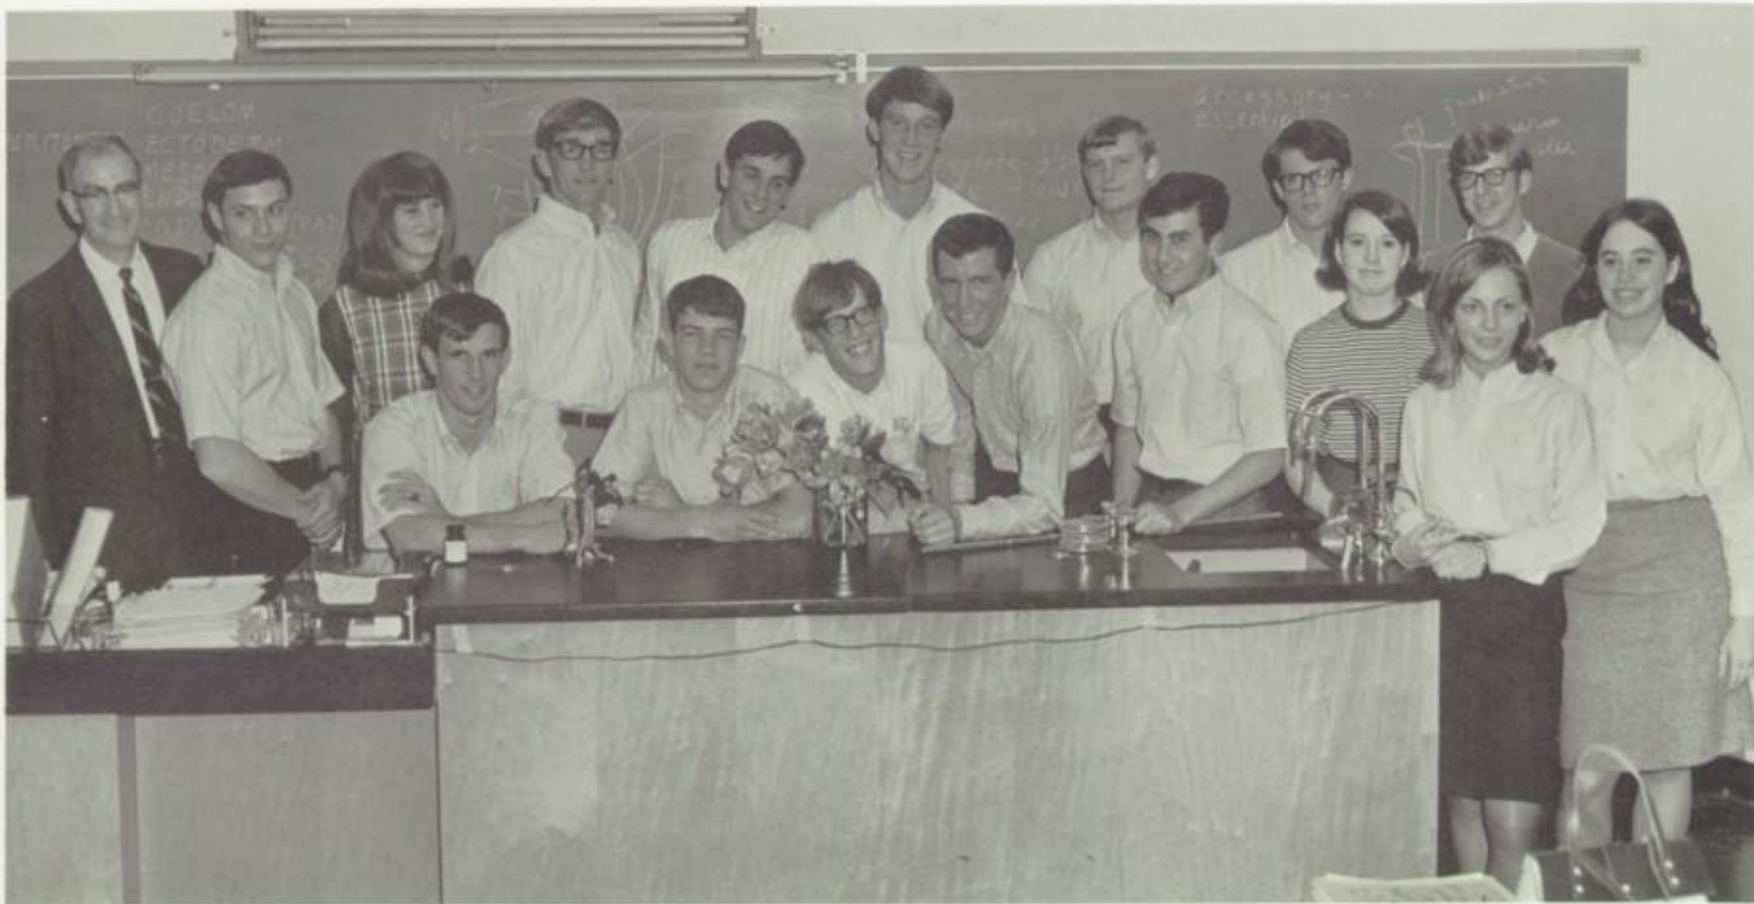

Considering its newness, the Silversmith Club has come a long way in its three years of existence. Miss Mary Miller, the advisor, instructed this new idea in crafts to her very enthusiastic members every Tuesday. The girls, along with three boys, created interesting, pretty, and sometimes disastrous jewelry for their own use or as gifts. Most of the necessary tools and equipment were available for the students' use, adding to the authenticity of each product. The club had small money-making affairs to help pay for the silver needed to make the jewelry.

Under the direction of Susie Ratcliffe, President; Renee Nester, Vice-President; Janice Olson, Secretary; and Eileen Laudenslager, Treasurer, the 1968 Dolphin Club presented the entertaining On a Flying Carpet. The annual program was held in the natatorium in mid-April and featured the male swimmers of E.H.S. with Joey Schantz as Miss Emmaus.

The theme was a representation of countries by each group of swimmers and was narrated by David Haines. Of course the show was not complete without presentation of roses to Mrs. Huber and dunking her in the pool after the final performance. For her service, each girl was rewarded with a silver charm depicting movements of water ballet.

Purchased jointly by the Dolphin Club and Student Council, and agreed as necessary by the Emmaus High School swimming team, an electric scoreboard has received the place of honor in the natatorium. Funds raised through Student Council activities and through the Dolphin Club watershow made possible the purchase of the scoreboard which has helped the audience to participate more actively in the meets. The scoreboard, although not official, gives the running time of the first place winner, junior varsity and varsity scores, and shows which lane won in the competition.

Despite a snowless winter, excellent skiing opportunities were made available on the artificial snow at Doe Mountains, the Thursday night meeting place, even though many skiers did not take advantage of it. However, the club trip to Big Boulder proved to be a tremendous success, including no injuries. To prepare skiers for the winter, a Norwegian instructor from Camelback Ski Area spoke about the history of skiing, his experiences, and the difference between Alpine and cross-country skiing. In addition, movies such as "Skiing the Western Front," which told of the skiing opportunities in the western states and others produced by the National Ski Patrol which illustrated ski safety, were shown. Brochures on safe skiing were also given to each member. Although members were apathetic to the idea, the plan for original EHS ski patches was introduced and dropped, but in future years may become a more supported and eventually successful idea.

The purpose of the Varsity E club was to honor the athletes of EHS. To obtain admittance into the club, one must have earned two or more varsity letters. Each new member received the traditional green jacket with a gold school emblem. The active organization annually sponsored the Faculty Basketball game, which was preceded this year by a pro-wrestling tournament. They also served as ushers at basketball games, organized the coat check system and held dances after games. This year the club elected Thom Heist, Dennis Sholl, Bonnie Zimmerman, and Joe Schantz as their leaders.

The class of '68 held their Junior Prom in the Americus Ballroom on the night of April 28, 1967. The "Illusives" provided the music and entertainment for the evening. A pink garland draped on the ceiling and balcony, a southern plantation mural, and cherrytree centerpieces set the mood for the theme, "The Cherry Blossom Ball." Roxanne Leonard was chosen to reign and was crowned by the former queen, Marie DeLong. The queen's court was composed of Ann Pazauskas, Mary Lucik, Bonnie Zimmerman, and Susan C. Smith.

Escorted by Mike Blair and Craig Wolfsy, 1967 prom queen Roxy Leonard and '66 queen Marie DeLong display their flowers, crowns and winning smiles.

Foreign students Alicia Pritz of EHS, Ernesto Pasqualin, and Edgar Montano discuss their droll impressions of American teenagers.

Emmaus High School welcomed Alicia Pritz as its American Field Service Argentine Exchange Student for the 1967-1968 school term. Elected Student council representative by her classmates, Alicia attended the meetings and reported the proceedings to her section. As a member of the Ski Club, she attempted to master that sport with the organization. In March she received a special invitation to student teach with the Future Teachers of America Club. Alicia has one brother and one sister, also an exchange student.

To celebrate Halloween festivities, Jon Young completes his painting of a goblin for the competition.

Led by Aaron Weida, the Soul Brothers have formed to stir up the once dormant spirit at EHS. Their voices can be heard at pep rallies, football and basketball games, and other sporting activities. A giant-sized thumb and melodious cheers are a few of the Soul innovations. Members of the group can easily be recognized by their sunglasses, ragged sneakers, unusual ties and hats. As a gesture acknowledging their important contribution to our school, the Soul Brothers were presented with a football signed by the team.

On entering the locker room, the aroma of old socks, deodorant, and perfume emerges to accost the victim of gym class. The familiar wet hair from swimming and the flushed faces as a result of track and physical fitness tests are noticeable on all the students throughout the school year as they are seen rushing to their next class. However, gym is not bad in most of its aspects. It relieves tensions, encourages fitness, and generates a degree of athletic ability in everyone.

As an EHS hostess to American Field Service students, Ellie Madonna served punch to foreign pupils: Kristiina Erhola, Dora Murta, and Enrico Cucchiani.

Seven American Field Service Exchange students including Kristiina Erhola, Finland; Dora Murta, Brazil; Enrico Cucchiani, Italy; Olga Clausen, Iceland; Ernesto Pasqualin, Brazil; Edgar Montano, Bolivia; and Alicia Pritz, Argentina, met with EHS hosts and hostesses on May 7 in Emmaus High School. The foreign pupils presented speeches emphasizing their initial fears about living in a strange country and their newly formed impressions of the United States — its teenagers, its foods, and its educational ideas.

Selected by former English teachers, twenty-three seniors participated this year in EHS's first Honors English program. Purposes of the course were to develop creative and analytic writing, to cultivate forthright discussions, and to encourage voracious reading. Definitive, argumentative, and expository literary techniques were studied in addition to six thematic units and suggestions for writing "instant theme." The characteristics of the hero were explored in chapters such as the hero and his environment.

The beautiful ballroom at Seeger's Union and the surrounding campus of Muhlenberg College provided an enchanting atmosphere for the Senior Ball. Dancing to the music of the Royal Dukes, the girls in flowing gowns escorted by their handsome dates made the evening unforgettable. Entitled "Something Blue," symbolizing our class colors of navy and light blue, the Senior Ball brought the year to a climactic close. The after-ball provided more occasion for the couples to gather pleasant memories and visit their "class-mates."

Missing a day of school — that's how most pupils anticipated the class excursion to the Lehigh Valley Courthouse in Allentown. However, the experience proved to be most enlightening as the students witnessed Judicial procedures and gained immediate knowledge of criminal trials. The failures of the courts system were revealed as an incorrectly written Bill of Indictment enabled a "guilty individual" to be freed. Judge Wieand explained his duties, the history of the state flag, and his opinion of the drinking laws.

The class of '68 stood expectantly at the entrance to the cafeteria and waited for their honored guests, the football team. The seniors had risen early in order to attend the "Kick Off Breakfast," held November 22, to celebrate the forthcoming Thanksgiving Day Game. Of course, the seniors had purchased the tickets for the entire team, coaches, Mr. Frantz, Mr. Unger, and Mr. Stoudnour. Breakfast included scrambled eggs, sausage, cocoa, buns, and orange juice. The Soul Brothers led the crown in a demonstration of support.

Amid the corn stalks and pumpkins, the gym, crowded with bare-foot dancers, swung to the music of "The Lovin' Souls" on October 28 at the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. Doughnuts and apple cider refreshed the Daisy Maes and Lil' Abners throughout the evening. Reigning over Dogpatch this year were king and queen, Roy Stauffer and Debbie Pryor. They won the honor by being selected as the couple wearing the most original and appropriate costumes.

Most juniors (class of '68) had given up in despair when class rings finally arrived a month late, in January — That's a Christmas gift? Eager but incredulous students crowded around the school store and adjoining hallways to collect their prized possessions. School work suffered as people were far too busy admiring and dropping their rings to glance at the blackboards or their textbooks. They had established their status in the school, for now they were officially upperclassmen at last!

Spiriting the Hornets to a league championship were Jan Koze, Diane Parton, Penny Follette, Colleen Kells, Pat Faust, Bonnie Zimmerman, and Jane Berry.

Relying on the leadership of its officers to function efficiently, the class of '68 chose four girls to carry out the official duties. As president, Ann Puzauskas presided over all meetings, conducted them informally, and initiated class activities. Also chosen were Mary Lucik as Vice-President, Susie Ratcliffe, Secretary, and Roxy Leonard, Treasurer. These girls, each very capable, have served our class well and helped to end the year successfully.

To complete this year's executive staff, Mary Lucik was chosen as vice-president, while Sue Ratcliffe, Ann Puzauskas, and Roxy Leonard were re-elected to their former positions.

Featured are the Letter of Commendation winners in the National Merit Tests: Bob Williamson, Alice Arnold, Debbie Esterly and the finalist, Chris Hornbeck.

In February of 1967, the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests were administered to sixty-one members of the class of 1968. The results of these grueling examinations of knowledge and retention produced three winners of Letters of Commendation. They included Alice Arnold, Debbie Esterly, and Robert Williamson. Christopher Hornbeck placed as a Finalist in the competition. The remaining fifty-seven Juniors who participated in the testing gained experience which would lead to success in taking the SATs and the Achievement Tests.

The responsibility of managing the affairs of the senior class of 1968 rested with Mr. Samuel Himmelberger. His job was undoubtedly a challenging one and we relied on his wise leadership. As head class advisor for two years, he supervised all class functions, made most welcome suggestions for money-raising projects, and guided the class through many impecunious periods. At this time the seniors would like to formally acknowledge his kindness, his willingness to work, his untiring devotion of his time, and his courage.

In mid-November, the class of 1968 presented "A Handful of Rainbows," a comedy portraying the lives of budding actors and actresses who have come to Hollywood to seek their fortunes. Louise Heckman and Jill Long captured the leading roles during the hectic days of tryouts and played two middleaged sisters who ran a boarding-house for hopeful stars. The cast, under the direction of Mr. Woodrow Schaadt, spent many weeks memorizing lines, practicing voice projection, and rehearsing scenes before the final production, a great success.

During a practice session of the Senior Class Play, "A Handful of Rainbows," Mary Lucik cranes her neck and stands on tiptoe to kiss Jon Young.

The spirit of EHS came alive on Color Day "67". Preparations for the Thanksgiving Day game were nearly completed and the entire student body was involved in activities. Beginning at 6:30 A.M., the Senior Breakfast saluted the championship football team. Following was a day of excitement, accented by hallways covered with signs of "Beat Whitehall" and "We're No. 1." Climaxing Color Day was the annual Thanksgiving game pep rally which was highlighted by the crowning of Football Queen, Bonnie Zimmerman.

With the game and the season over and the armor hung away until next year, only the memories remain. The Green Hornets' memories were many and rewarding. Overflowing with spirit and desire, the Hornets set many respectable records. The records of accomplishment stood as: Lehigh Valley League Champs 7-0, nine consecutive victories, Emmaus first outright Lehigh Valley Championship. Coach Neff's unit also contributed the most victories in a season and the finest over all record of 9-1.

After an opening night disaster by losing to Parkland 34-13 the Green and Gold no longer know the word defeat. The biggest test came against Palmerton when the Hornets stung Palmerton 19-2. The ability to crack the line hard, block, tackle, and run as a complete unit was the formula Emmaus used to hand Palmerton its only defeat in league play. The one play that kept Emmaus from defeat was Pete Kells' 85-yard kickoff return at the start of the second half to give the Champs a 20-14 victory over always rugged Lehighton.

Competing with determination and stamina, the Junior Varsity squad deserved much credit for taking second place in League competition. Due to their desire to win and the expert coaching of David MacLaughlin and Charles Woginrich they achieved a final record of five wins, three losses, and one tie.

The Little Hornets started the season poorly, losing to Parkland and Quakertown. The next few weeks the Baby Green showed their grit by defeating Stroudsburg and League champs Slatington. The Hornets kept their winning way by drawing a 6-6 tie with the Rough Riders. Later the Hornets smashed Lehighton and Palmerton. In the end the squad experienced a demoralizing upset with rival Whitehall.

cheering squad adds colorful spirit

Getting patrons for the Booster Club, planning pep rallies, sewing new uniforms for winter sports, composing new cheers, holding long, hot practices throughout the year, painting countless signs to boost the Hornets onto victory — these were but a few of the activities of the Emmaus High Cheerleaders. The Varsity and Junior Varsity squads alike deserved praise and recognition for leading the fans in cheering for the Hornets.

Diane Parton, Penny Follette, and Judy Wood cheer Emmaus onto a great victory.

distance runners aim to improve record

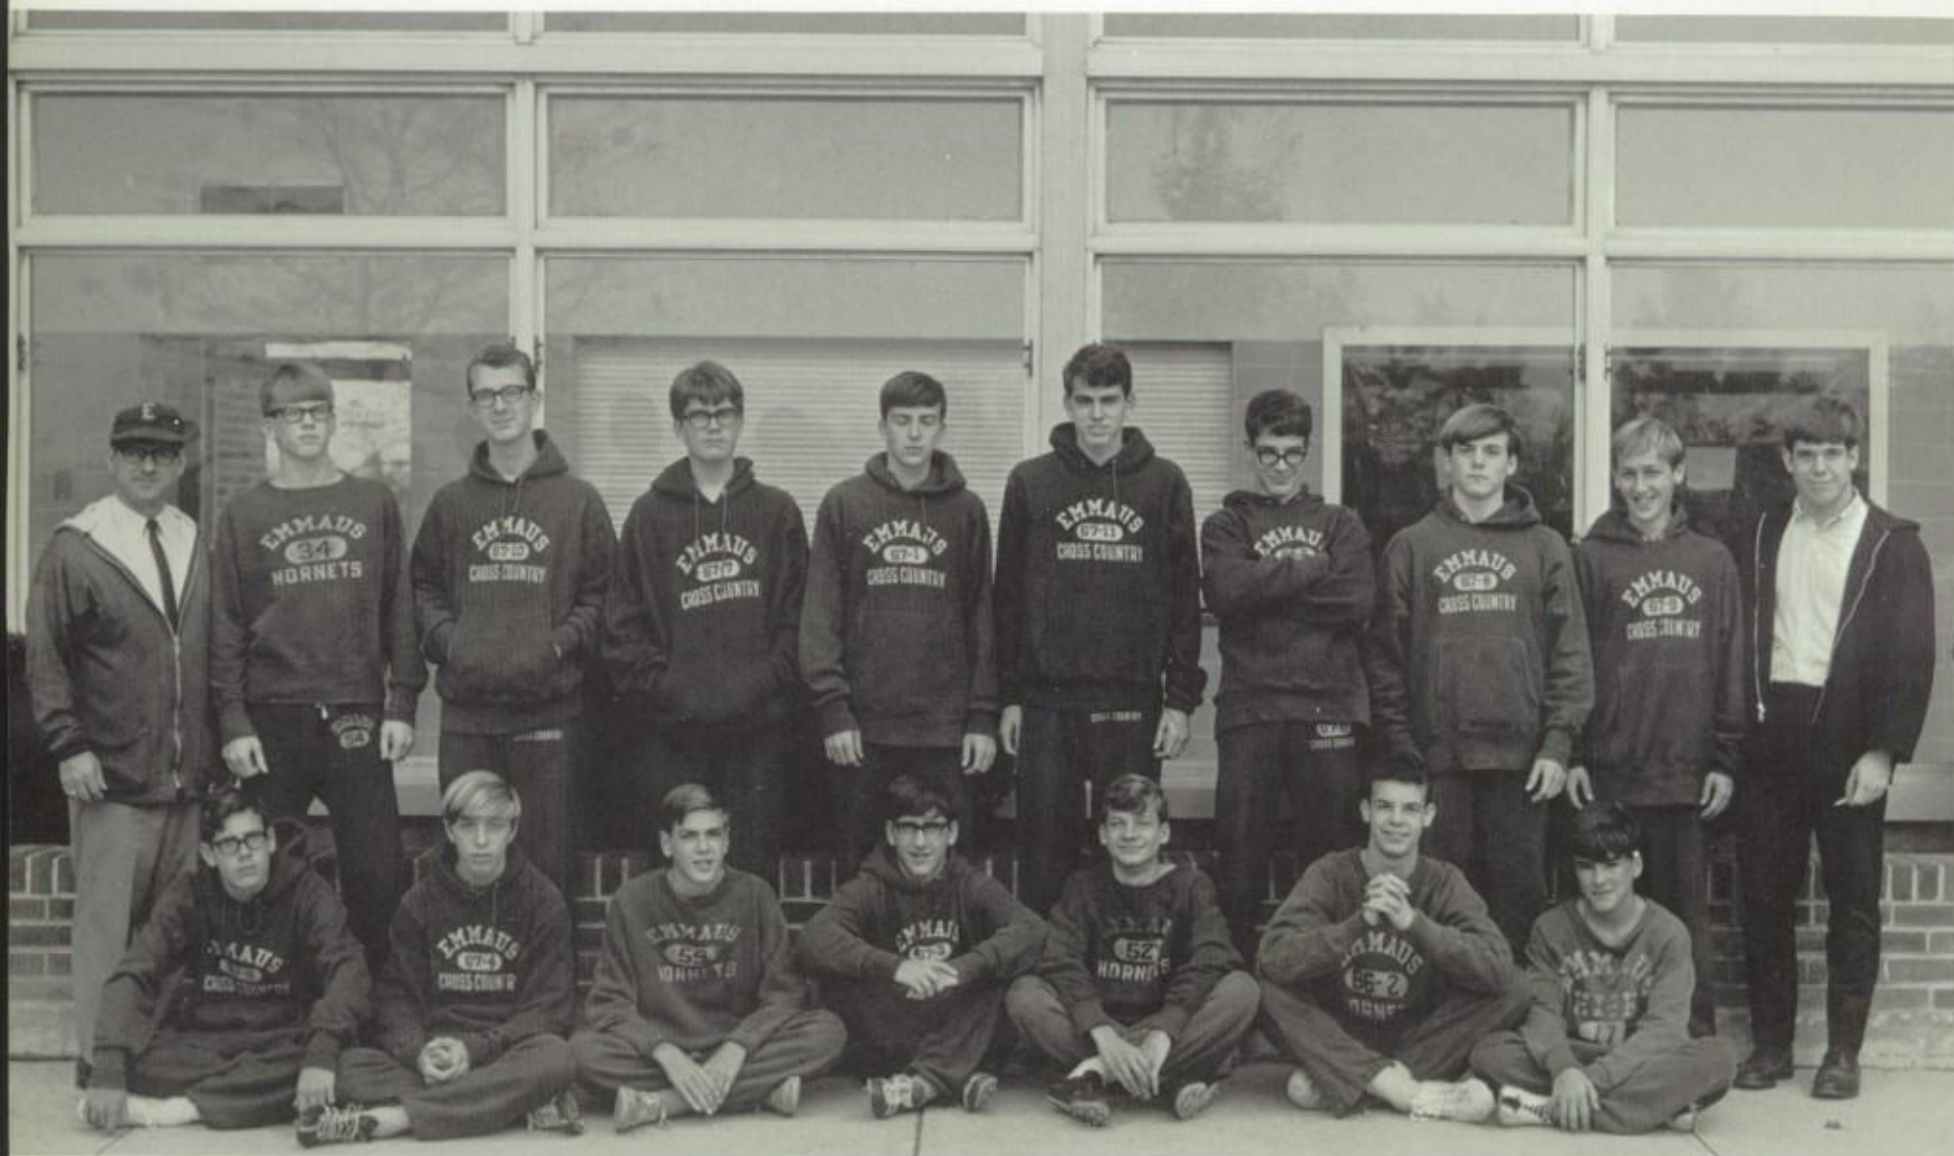

Through hard work and excellent coaching by Robert A. Bottorf, the cross country team showed a considerable improvement in its second season. Junior Dale Kleppinger brought success by placing fifth in districts and sixty-eight in states out of one hundred and fifty-one runners, and by setting a school record of 11'57" on the 2.3 miles course. As a whole, this energetic team placed fifth in the District II meet.

Enthusiasm, sportsmanship, and determination brought about seventy-five candidates for girls' basketball to practice in November.

The girls started their season with two seniors and seven returning letter winners. Under the direction of Coach Gwendlyn Armitage, the team continued its winning tradition by finishing first during the first half of league competition with a record of seven wins and no losses.

During the second half the girls fought hard as they battled for the league title. A strong Northampton team brought defeat to the Hornets and won the league championship by a small margin.

Peggy Coker led the team in scoring with a per game average of 26.8 and has been the top league for two years. Joann Svrcek with a per game average of 13.5 ranked second in team scoring and ninth in league competition.

The 1968 Tattler Staff gratefully acknowledges the cooperation and assistance of the following:
 the Faculty and Administration
 Hess's Photography Studio
 the many patrons and our advisor, Mrs. Jean H. Bieber.
 As for the students, they will always remember . . .

Guidance conferences . . .
 The Hornettes . . .

English II . . .

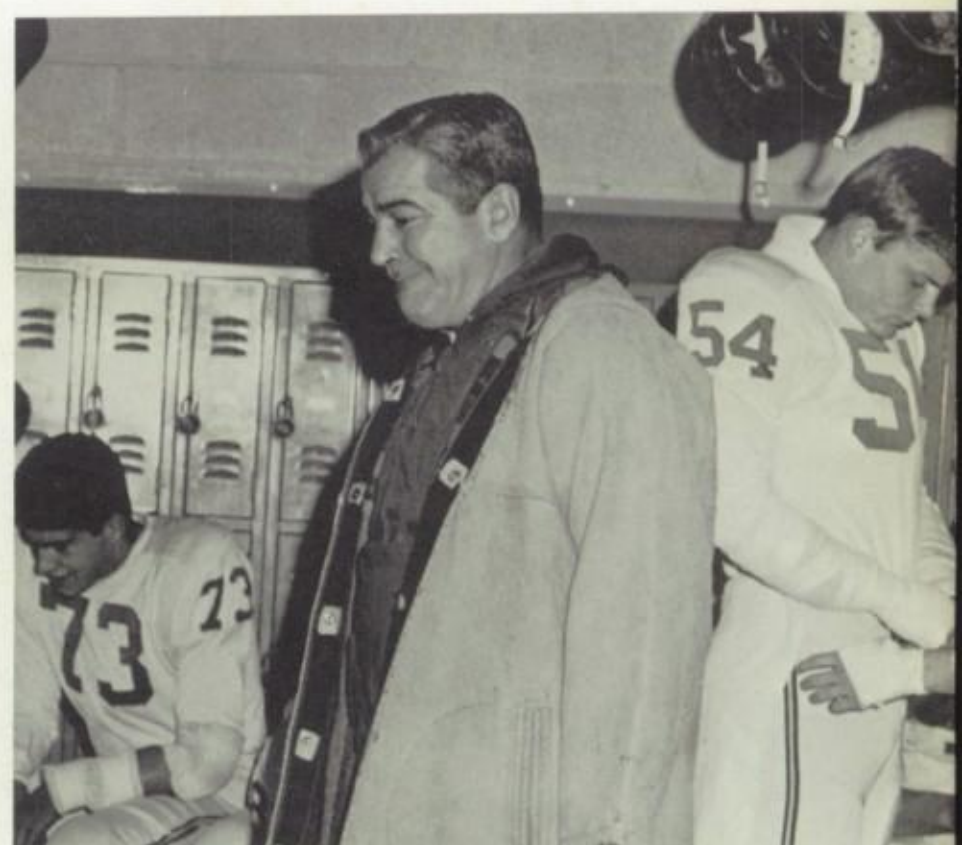

Vocational arts . . .

The No. 1 team . . .

Mr. Sthare's math . . .

Pre-game anxiety . . .

The Class of 1968
Has climbed the steps of education.
We hope this yearbook
Will keep alive the memories,
Both elating and disappointing,
That compose a high school career.
In our minds remain
The football championship,
The unexpected vacation of a snowday,
The hoagie sales,
The class dances,
The surprise history quiz,
And the final exams.
The room is empty, but the memories remain.
